Wu Siou Ming, based in Kaohsiung, Taiwan, is a sound artist and interdisciplinary creator whose practice spans sound, digital imagery, installation, and electronic music. His works have been presented in major museums across Taiwan and at international festivals, reflecting a commitment to bridging local culture with global dialogues.

Central to his approach is the use of site-specific contexts, through which he explores phenomenology and human perception. By carefully listening to and observing urban environments, Wu transforms subtle social and spatial cues into immersive audiovisual experiences. His projects often highlight issues such as economic justice, youth movements, and environmental sustainability, inviting audiences to reflect on the hidden rhythms of everyday life.

Wu has received significant recognition, including the 2025 Don Sante Contemporary Art Award (Social Art Prize) in Italy, the Arte Laguna Prize Special Award, and the Kaohsiung Award, as well as being shortlisted for the Luxembourg Art Prize and selected for Taiwan’s Ministry of Culture “Made in Taiwan” program. His works have been showcased at Ars Electronica (Austria), Siggraph Asia, Science Gallery Monterrey, Rencontres Internationales Paris/Berlin, and the Athens Biennale, among other international platforms.

Through his art, Wu Siou Ming bridges technology and philosophy, offering audiences profound sensory encounters that illuminate intersections of identity, memory, and collective experience. His practice continues to evolve, expanding from sound-based explorations into multi-sensory installations that challenge how we perceive space, time, and community.
